Community Letter

Happy Friday CRR!

This week we wanted to share some pictures from the recent community events and thank everyone who joined us!

The Independence Day event was a huge success. No one I spoke to expected it to be as well attended as it turned out to be.

We went through between 600 and 700 hotdogs and hamburgers, and estimate total attendance somewhere around 800-850 people. Few people would have stayed for the entire event, with most showing up for an hour or two before heading out. Peak crowd was between 12:30 and 1:00 with the crowd easily numbering around 250 at one time.

I asked a few different people who would be able to say for sure, and I was told it has been either seven or eight years since the last 4th of July community event. Having not held an event like this for so long, there are surely people who are used to there not being an event that might have been unaware it was happening. The point is, if we continue to host this event in the coming years and awareness of it really gets out there we can expect this same event to be even bigger next year and beyond.

The whole thing really could not have gone any better.

There was also a great turn out for the first time dance instruction event at the Water Tower:

Last thing to share this week is that with the construction of a temporary barrier to segment the space, additional parking for Pickin' on the Porch is being created from a small portion of the barn property to alleviate some of the street parking:

Until next week,

A Message From Your Environmental Conservation Committee

Eco Fishing Weights

Not only is lead toxic to humans, but it's dangerous for fish as well, causing both physical and behavioral changes. That's why many manufacturers today produce sinkers made from safer materials that will cause less damage if ingested or left in the water. Some common substitutes used in non-toxic weights are brass, steel, tungsten or tin. You'll also want to make sure they're chip resistant to prevent paint loss in the water. And remember that while these variations may be a little more expensive than lead lures, the benefits outweigh the costs.
